Presentation

The Catholic University Luis Amigó was founded in 1984 by the Community of the Capuchin Tertiaries, inspired by the educational work of Luis Amigó. With more than 40 years of history, it has become a higher education institution committed to comprehensive education, inclusion, and social transformation.

The University's mission is rooted in the fundamental requirement of developing educational and training processes within a high-quality framework, contributing to the development and construction of the country. This is achieved through its core functions of teaching, research, outreach, well-being, and internationalization, while training competent professionals capable of applying interdisciplinary knowledge and contributing to social development and transformation.

Currently, the University offers accredited high-quality academic programs, as well as postgraduate programs at the specialization, master's, and doctoral levels. Its main campus is located in Medellín, with regional centers in Apartadó, Manizales, and Montería.

Office of Institutional Cooperation and International Relations – OCRI

This unit is responsible for implementing and carrying out projects and actions that support the internationalization process of the Catholic University Luis Amigó. It fosters the exchange of experiences in the pedagogical, research, training, and cooperation dimensions, contributing to institutional development. Its work includes: building internal culture, supporting mobility of the Amigonian community, analyzing the curriculum, promoting academic programs and services, and formalizing agreements for project development and participation in national and international academic networks.

The unit is responsible for:

- Advising the academic community on international academic matters.
- Defining internationalization policies.
- Managing academic mobility.
- Managing agreements, academic networks, and inter-institutional relations.
- Disseminating academic offers, awards, scholarships, and more.

Immigration Requirements for Entering Colombia

Immigration permit:

If the student belongs to a country that does not require a visa to enter Colombian territory for study purposes for one semester, a letter of request for permission will be sent, which must be presented to the immigration authorities upon entering the country.

This permit is generally valid for 90 days. Before the 90 days expire, students must apply for renewal and assume the cost of this.

Visa Application Process:

Students who require a visa or whose stay exceeds 180 days must apply for a visa in accordance with the instructions of the Colombian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. In addition, they must apply for a foreigner's identity card, for which the student must also bear the associated costs.
